Student Conduct: Academic Integrity

Faculty Suspects Violation of Academic Integrity:

1. Cheating
2. Plagiarism
3. Other forms of academic dishonesty.

Academic Consequences:

1. Resolve the matter directly with the student.
2. Give partial credit for assignment.
3. Have the student redo the assignment.
4. Fail the student on the assignment.
5. Fail the student in the course.

Faculty should clearly define policies for violations of academic integrity in their course syllabus and follow those policies when they suspect a violation.

Student Conduct: Academic Integrity

Disciplinary Consequences:

Option 1*

Faculty may refer the student to the Conduct Office for tracking purposes only (no investigation). UAS maintains a conduct database of all referrals. Three referrals of one student from more than one faculty member will result in an investigation.

Option 2

Faculty submits an allegation of misconduct to the Conduct Office for investigation. Faculty must provide supporting documentation and will be informed of investigation results. Violations of student conduct result in disciplinary Sanctions (e.g., warning, probation, discretionary or educational sanctions, suspension or expulsion).

*Faculty who assign a failing grade must refer the student to the Conduct Office.
