

ALST 600 Alaska's Resources, People and Perspectives

The Candidate will:

1. Integrate study of the geography, natural history, human and cultural history, government, industry/economy and education of Alaska into academic disciplines.
2. Incorporate place-based curriculum focused on local culture, people, history, and government across disciplines.
3. Articulate the broad themes of social justice, environmental justice, and resource management in terms of their influence on Alaskan history.
4. Draw from primary source historical documents to integrate Alaskan history across disciplines.
5. Compare the cultural beliefs, practices, and history of Native Alaskans across the state to better understand diverse perspectives and viewpoints.

ED 603 / ALST 603 Alaska Literature for Young People

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Candidates develop knowledge of Alaska's history, cultures, geography, and natural world through study of literature and other materials for grades K-8.
2. Candidates gain an overview of the literature of Alaska for young people.
3. Candidates understand the issues about writing for and about Alaskan indigenous peoples.
4. Candidates practice a variety of methods for engaging children with literature.
5. Candidates create curriculum for Alaska Studies.
6. Candidates participate in a professional community of learners.