

ASTR S225 – General Astronomy

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the scientific method including its error correcting properties
2. Describe the large and small scale properties and components of the universe including:
birth, current state and future
3. Explain the development of life on earth as well as the possibility of life in the solar system and around other stars