8. Canvas LMS Pilot
 - a. From Maren’s Provost Report>Faculty Senate September 2020 minutes: The eLearning Council (a subgroup of Academic Council) has been receiving updates on the Canvas pilot. The Canvas pilot originated at UAF’s eCampus, and now faculty from the three Universities will be included. Initially scheduled for fall 2020, the pilot was pushed back to spring 2021 (although I want to say a “pilot of the pilot” occurred fall 2020). I understand that the Faculty Alliance is keeping an eye on this project as well. The pilot includes faculty teaching a course in a live Canvas course site for one full semester.
 - b. Faculty wishing to participate should let Maren know by October 16th. Faculty do have the option to complete an online form to request participation but UAS must have a complete list of faculty and their courses who are involved in the project.
 - c. Michael Ciri has concerns about piloting in a live environment and has offered the following:
 - i. It does not serve the students well to set up live classes in a pilot system
 - ii. We are not prepared to support classes in Canvas from a technical, administrative, or instructional design capacity
 - iii. It is not necessary to run live classes in Canvas in order to answer the critical questions facing UA.
